M'GRATH TIRED OF WASHINGTON.

Congressman Hunt's Private Secretary Would Like to Be Here Permanently.

MAY RETURN AFTER HOLIDAYS.

Sick and Tired of National Capital, Although He Declares He Has Enjoyed His Experiences in the East.

Michael K. McGrath, private secretary to Congressman J. T. Hunt, is back in St. Louis for the holidays. He lost no time yesterday in going down to the La-Hotel and exchanging political views with his old friends from the country. He is sick and tired of the national capital, even though he admires it, and would like to come back here and stay. However, he will probably return to Washington after the holidays.

"The two leaders of the House of Representatives," he said to a group of friends yesterday, "are about as unlike in their general make-up as they are politically. Payne, the Republican leader, is big and beefy; Williams is tall and slim. Payne represents the political prejudices of the Northern Republican; Williams the nature and instincts of the Southern gentleman. Payne's parliamentary tactics are those ward meeting; Williams fights open-handed and fearlessly against a ma-

"While the Republicans have the ma-

"While the Republicans have the majority in the House, the Democrats have the talent and the orators, controlled largely by Missouri, Texas and the South. Williams and DeArmond are really the able men of the House. Intellectually the Congress of to-day is far below that of twenty years ago.

"Congress will do nothing this session other than passing the appropriation bill. Barthold will not even pass his canteen bill. The last Congress abolished the congressional saloon at the Capitol. This Congress is not likely to legislate in that direction. The drinking and gaming so common among Congressmen years ago has almost disappeared, and there is very little to be seen of these excesses among the members of the present Congress.

SPEAKER IS ARBITRARY.

"The Republican House, with only twenty-nine majority, finds it difficult to steer itself, even with the aid of the

"The Republican House, with only twenty-nine majority, finds it difficult to steer itself, even with the aid of the Speaker, who is just as arbitrary as were his predecessors. Political rules of order, objections without reason, previous questions to shut off debate on the Democratic side, are as general and as readily recognized by Cannon as they were by Reed and Henderson. A change of fourteen members would place the Democratic in control of the House and reverse its present political complexion. This is not unexpected at the next general election. "Congressman McClellan, recently elected Mayor of New York, is not what may be termed politically a brilliant man. He is of a practical view, with no pretenses to oratory, although a fair reasoner. He is about the average height and weight and built somewhat like Mayor Wells, but not quite as stout as Mr. Wells.

"Compared with the Senate, there are few millionaires in the House. Hearst of New York is about the only one. His millions, however, are chiefly in the hands of his mother, who went in 1848 with her husband from Franklin County, Missouri, to California, where young Hearst was born. He would like to be President, and is organizing his forces in that direction.

"Hanna, although in high favor with Senators and Representatives, will not be a candidate for the presidency. His chronic rheumatic gout will necessarily keep him out of the race. He cannot cross the room without the aid of a stout cane.

"A prominent Republican was heard to says: 'All favor Roosavelt was heard to says: 'All favor Roosavelt for President.

Rooseveit will be the Republican nomlinee.

"A prominent Republican was heard to says: 'All favor Roosevelt for President, though nobody wants him. We will have a time electing him.' Senator Platt, like Hanna, is on his last legs politically, and out of New York politics.

"Notwithstanding the objections raised to Senator Smoot, he will not be disturbed.
While his case and the charges are exactly those against Roberts, expelled by the last Congress, it is unlike it politically.
Smoot is an alleged Republican, elected by a Republican Legislature, composed largely of Mormons. The two Senators from Utah represent a political anomalyKearns is a Catholic and Smoot is a Mormon."

TORPEDOBOAT IN COLLISION. Badly Damages Ferryboat in

East River, New York. New York, Dec. 22.—The torpedo boat

Winslow was in collision with the steamer America in the East River to-day. The hull of the ferryboat was stove in and the torpedo boat was also injured. torpedo boat was also injured.

The Winslow was starting for Newport, but at once put back for the navy yard, which was reached without accident.

The ferryboat, which was crowded with passengers, began to fill rapidly. As she was nearest the Manhattan shore her captain turned her around and managed to reach the Grand street pier in New York.

to reach the Grand Street part of York.

In the bow of the Winslow is a hold fourteen inches in diameter, and the bow is badly twisted and bent. When she reached the navy yard the torpedo boat was leaking badly, and has been docked for repairs. She was commanded by Lieutenant Charles P. Nelson and manned by a crew of forty men.
